Greenwood residents will be able to view new sculptures next year as they drive and walk along the Greenwood Arts Trail.

A $5,000 donation from the Greenwood Park Board to the Greater Greenwood Arts Council will help expand the Art on the Trailways program, which puts public art along trails in the city. The arts council also is accepting donations to help fund and expand the project, according to a news release.

The city will put out a national call to artists in December and plans to choose and install the new sculptures by April, the release said.
